White Stone feedback 14 Feb 26

Today screen:
- Make the Stone 50% bigger
- Add a haptic when the stone is flipped: a mid-strength double tap.
- The timeline still has a gap in between.
- Add a tab "About", which contains a "Back" button & the below text explaining what this app is about:

    This app is inspired by Upagupta, who was the spiritual teacher of the ancient Indian Emperor Ashoka.
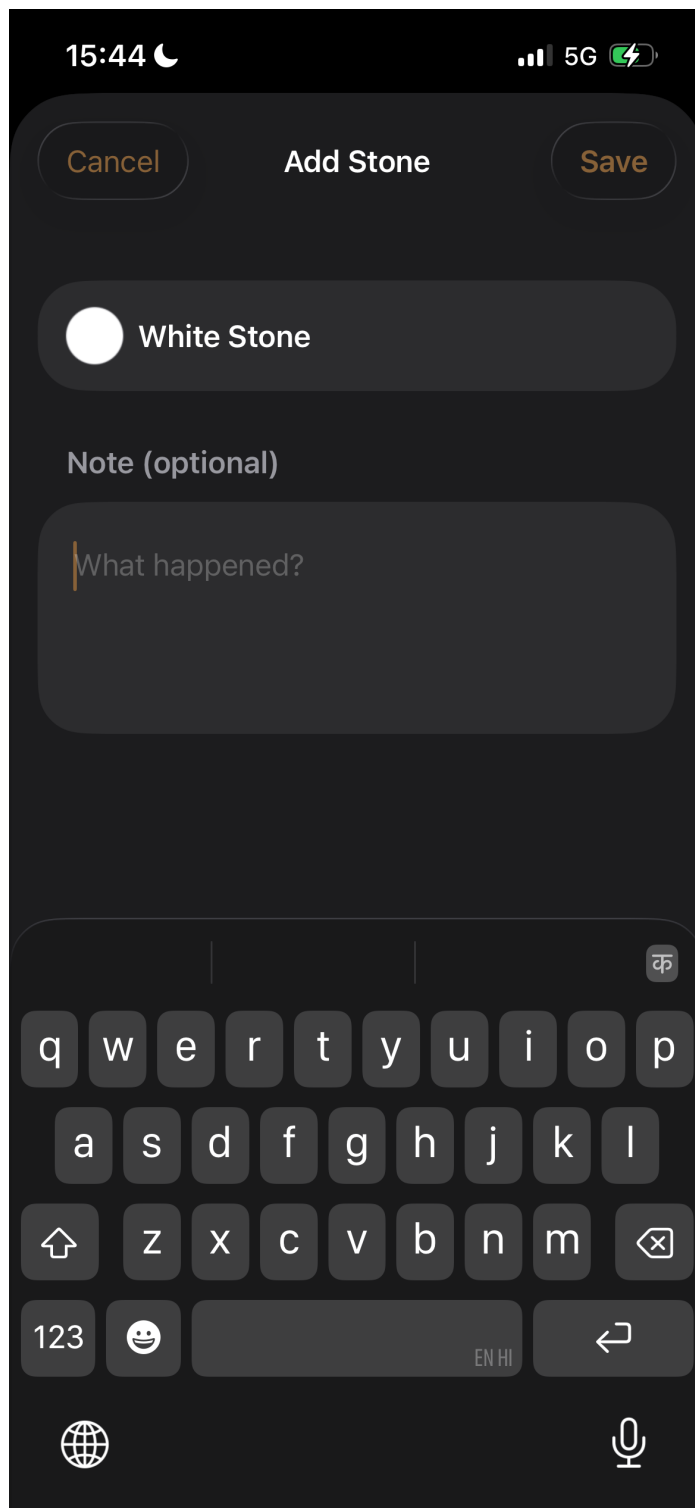

"Upagupta, the fourth patriarch, was a native of the Madura country. He had a noble countenance which indicated his integrity, and was highly intelligent and eloquent.

His instructor, Shangnavasu, the third patriarch, told him to keep black and white pebbles.
When he had a bad thought he was to throw down into a basket a black pebble;
when he had a good thought he was to throw down a white pebble.

Upagupta did as he was told.

At first bad thoughts abounded, and black pebbles were very numerous. Then the white and black were about equal. On the seventh day there were only white pebbles. Shangnavasu then undertook to expound to him the four truths." - Chinese Buddhism, Joseph Edkins, 1893, p.68

Stone log entry modal
- There should be the option to enter an entry for a different time. The default timing should be the current date and time (in the current time zone of the system), but should allow the user to change the time (not date).
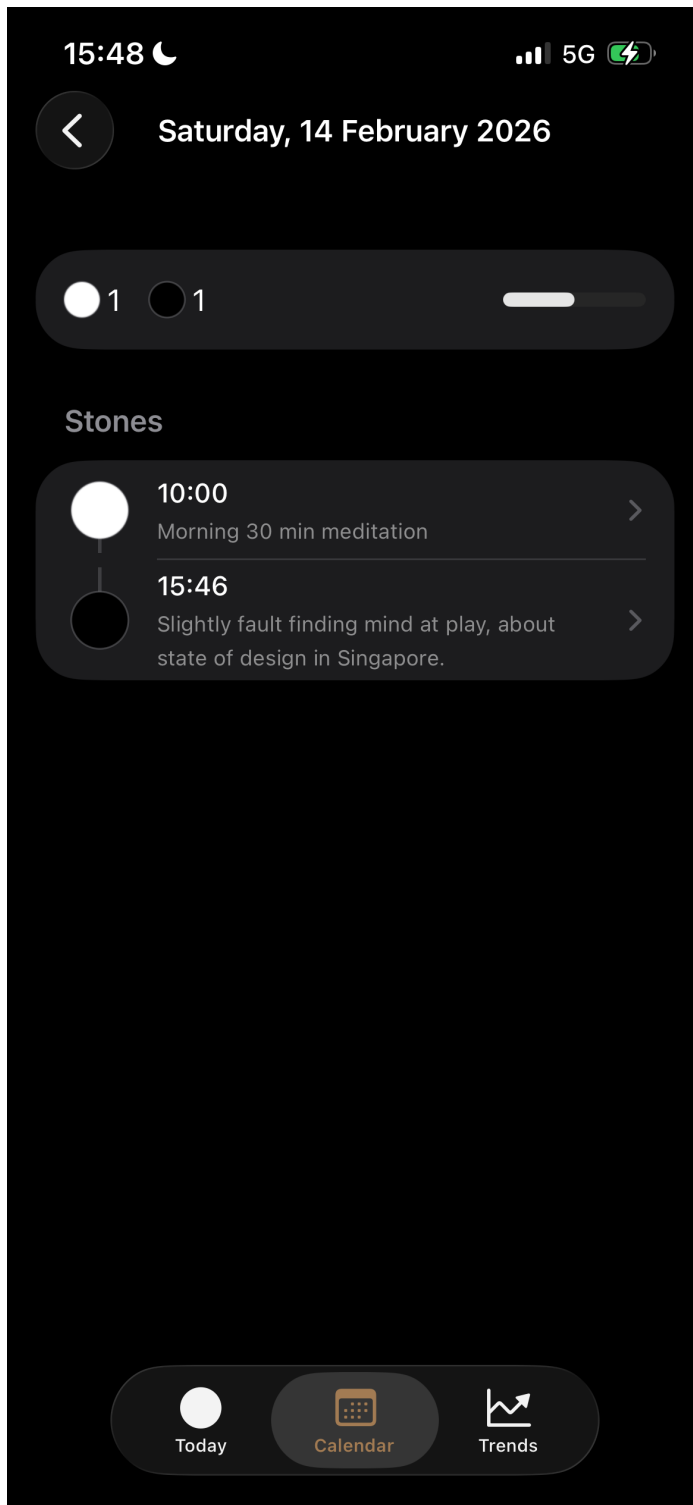

Trends screen
- – When the chart is tapped, the StonesView dropping from above looks like this when captured mid-movement. Can the StonesView opacity be 0 (i.e. initially fully transparent) but it then renders to full opacity when the animation is near the bottom of the screen?
